

ABOUT STEVE MCQUILKEN

Steve McQuilkin is a storytelling coach and the Southwest Florida regional editor for environment and business news. He helps guide coverage for The News-Press and the Naples Daily News and also coordinates coverage with the USA TODAY Network - Florida on various projects.

He has held a variety of positions at The News-Press for the past 20 years, including business and education editor and executive metro editor.

Before coming to Southwest Florida in 1999, McQuilkin covered the tobacco industry for the Winston-Salem Journal, where he wrote a history of R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. with two other reporters.

Prior to that he was a reporter, copy editor and bureau chief for the Tampa Tribune. He started his career at the Boca Raton News after graduating from the University of Florida.

McQuilkin is a semi-native who grew up in Pinellas County after spending his first 10 years as a Navy brat in various spots along the East Coast. He is a runner and history buff.